D1W1ZAMCN	2016-11-09	Dave Zvenyach (Alumni / MSN / He / Him)	hey. saw your comment in slack about the townhall. fwiw, i tried really hard to balance what was a flood of emotional energy in 18F and what i firmly believe, which is that we have mission and that should be our focus	2016-11-09 17:15:01	FALSE
D1W1ZAMCN	2016-11-09	Dave Zvenyach (Alumni / MSN / He / Him)	would love your thoughts about how i could have navigated that better	2016-11-09 17:15:14	FALSE
D1W1ZAMCN	2016-11-09	Amy Lawson (OPP/DC/she)	Actually, you did fine and saved the meeting. David Shive was out of line (dressed l ke a Republican?) I'm not a Republican, but there were quite a few alienating comments and it was not an appropriate tone for a government meeting. I get that a Presidential transition is filled with unknowns and folks are nervous, but the focus should have been on being a good, non-partisan public servant, not talking about "allies". You steered the conversation to the correct heading at the end.	2016-11-09 17:29:44	FALSE
D1X564NMA	2016-11-09	Amy Lawson (OPP/DC/she)	Jen, although Dave saved that meeting in the end, that was the most partisan meeting I have ever attended in government. David Shive joking that he dressed l ke a Republican (because he wore a suit and tie?) and concern about the "white men" and what steps needed to be taken to protect us from the new President-elect ("having allies"). I'm not even a Republican and I'm offended! The point of the meeting was to reassure the staff that everything will be all right and that certainly could have been done without the copious partisan overtones. Not good. Definitely not good.	2016-11-09 15:40:51	FALSE

D30L6PXNE	2016-11-09	Amy Lawson (OPP/DC/she)	Hi Peter! I have over a decade in federal service and that was a hard sentence to write, but it was true. Dave did an excellent job bringing it to a close by emphasizing that we are public servants first, but I'm not even a Republican and I was appalled at the tone and content.	2016-11-09 17:34:08	FALSE
D30L6PXNE	2016-11-09	Peter (ooo 9/4) Burkholder (he/DCA/4th year 18F)	I figured it took courage to write that, so good on you. And it sounds like Dave's message is appropriate for our mission and values. Hope to meet you in person around -- cheers, peter	2016-11-09 17:48:27	FALSE

legalstuff	2016-11-24	Eric Mill (DC, he/him)	&gt; The definition of political activity also includes activity directed at the success or failure of a political party or partisan political group. See 5 C.F.R. § 734.101. Therefore, even after Election Day, the Hatch Act still prohibits federal employees, while they are on duty or in the federal workplace, from wearing or displaying items that show support for or opposition to a political party or partisan political group. &gt; &gt; For example, a federal employee can never wear or display a political party t-shirt or similar item in the federal workplace. Accordingly, even after Election Day, employees, while on duty or in the federal workplace, are prohibited from wearing or displaying items that show support for or opposition to a political party and a Presidential candidate; for example, items with a “Democrats for Obama” or “Republicans for Romney” slogan.	2016-11-24 9:53:32	FALSE
login-product	2016-11-10	Joel Minton (gone, reach out to Alex Dalessio)	Hi team,  This will be a very long message, so please forgive me in advance. I want to communicate my overall feelings after the events on Tuesday.  I spent a lot of time reflecting on Tuesday and Wednesday on the outcome of the election and what it means to the digital movement and to <http://Login.gov Login.gov> specifically. I thought about the fundamental reason I came to Washington and whether the election results change the mission. The clear fact is that the results did not change my mission one bit. The ability to help Americans is just as important today as it was on Monday and it will be just as much on January 20th and beyond. I am here to partner with all of you and our customers at the agencies to deliver <http://Login.gov Login.gov> to help everyone who depend on the government to make them more successful.  The above are strictly my own views. You will have to do your own value judgment heading into January and to determine if you are just as passionate as you were on Monday. I would love for each and every one of you to continue on this critical mission to help hundreds of millions of people using the <http://login.gov login.gov> solution.  If you decide that you want to take a different path moving forward, I fully support your individual choice and I will help each one of you however I can to help you be successful now and in the future. Please reach out to me if you would like to discuss further or if you have specific concerns about the above topic or any other. My door is wide open for each and every one of you.  Also, I would like to know if you feel like the changes this week change your perspective on the <http://login.gov login.gov> project. We are on a critical mission and I want to ensure that we continue to have the most talented team in government. If you do think this does in fact change your future plans, please let me know through DM or a personal hangout. I would love to have that conversation with you if it would help.  Thank you for all of your service. I am very proud to serve with each and every one of you!  Joel  PS – From the President’s remarks yesterday: “We’re not Democrats first. Honestly...the worst thing I have dealt with in 16 years is every time a new President gets elected, they get to change the seal/logo on the Official Federal Government Letter Head.  Literally, the day after the new President is sworn in...all old letterhead must be destroyed and the new letterhead must come in and be used immediately.  This may not sound difficult or like a big deal to some...but try being the person who has to “guesstimate” how much old letterhead the office will use until the change while making sure there is limited amount of waste when getting rid of the old. 18f-management	2016-11-18	Dave Zvenyach (Alumni / MSN / He / Him)	<Ichannel> Following up on the conversation today, I wanted to follow up on something. I asked explicitly after the coffee about how much lead time we would have if the new Administration did decide to end 18F as a program. The answer I got back was great news. The bottom line is that in the extraordinarily unlikely scenario of 18F being eliminated or reduced significantly, this would trigger a bunch of government-y processes that would take a bunch of months at the least (say 6) before anyone's job would actually end. Again though I have heard nothing negative from anyone actually or possibly connected to trump, so have no reason to believe anything like this would ever come to pass.	2016-11-18 17:23:10	FALSE

			Dear GSA: I consider it a great privilege that we work for the agency entrusted to oversee the peaceful transition between presidential administrations. GSA has had the privilege of fulfilling this responsibility for more than 50 years. In addition to the great honor we feel in carrying out this duty, it also represents a true collaboration among all parts of GSA around a single project, all the while carrying out our principal mission in support of fellow government agencies. We've been tasked with this duty for more than a half century because we are the only federal agency with the required turnkey capacity and talent to make it happen. As of this morning, I took steps to ascertain the winner of the election. As such, we welcomed President-elect Donald J. Trump's transition team into Central Office transition space earlier today. I'd like to offer my personal thanks to the members of our Presidential Transition and Inaugural Support Teams led by Tim Horne, our Federal Transition Coordinator; Aimee Whiteman, our head of the Presidential Transition Support Team; and Vicki Willmann, our Director of the Inaugural Support Team. And I'd also like to thank Dan Miller and the transition team handling the changes at our Central Office and National Capital Region Headquarters. In addition to hosting the incoming administration at our Central Office in Washington, D.C., we will also house the Inaugural Committee in our Regional Headquarters. This creates a huge savings for the American people, and gives us an opportunity to show the incoming administration the unparalleled professionalism of our outstanding workforce. The GSA team has done a great job providing great pre-election support to both major party candidates. And they're already working with the Armed Forces Inaugural Committee to ensure a successful Inauguration Day. Most of all, though, I want to especially thank my fellow 1800 F Street colleagues, those in the National Capital Region Office Building, and those of you across all GSA regions for taking on this transition admirably. Indeed, even as we carry out this vital duty, we will also continue delivering on our fundamental mission. I am very proud of your dedication and commitment to enhancing our role as an economic catalyst across the country, expanding our efforts as a proactive federal partner in support of other government agencies, and continuously raising the high level of operational excellence for which we are already known. As the president has made clear, a seamless transition is one of his top priorities, and one we all share. For the next 73 days, whether supporting our next chief executive, introducing cutting-edge technologies to government, changing and improving the way we utilize the federal workplace, revolutionizing the acquisition process, or leveraging our presence around the country to support economic development, GSA's commitment to ensuring that government delivers on behalf of the American people is absolute and comprehensive. Each and every one of you is key to this, and I am very proud to call you my colleagues. On behalf of the entire federal government, I thank you for your truly invaluable efforts.

In his time at GSA, Mackichan worked on public bond financing for agency projects and led an effort to revise the standard government lease. Mackichan most recently was a partner in the government contracts practice at the law firm Holland and Knight. Whoever Trump taps to serve as GSA administrator will likely draw significant attention. general-talk	2016-11-14	Kara DeFrias	That's a hell of a run-on sentence, and somewhat lawyerly confusifying:  "...activities like wearing campaign t-shirts or displaying candidate pictures do not constitute political activity, and the Hatch Act does not prohibit a federal employee from engaging in such activities, even while on duty or in the federal workplace, federal employees are prohibited from wearing or displaying items that show support for or opposition to a political party alone or a political party and a Presidential candidate; for example, items with a "Democrats for Clinton" or "Republicans for Trump" slogan."  So they're saying, in my understanding of reading the above: 1. Hatch Act does not prohibit wearing campaign t-shirts or displaying candidate pictures even while on duty or in the federal workplace, as it does not constitute political activity. 2. Hatch Act does prohibit federal employees from wearing or displaying items that show support for or opposition to a political party alone or a political party and a Presidential candidate; for example, items with a "Democrats for Clinton" or "Republicans for Trump" slogan. 3. So... candidate stuff alone (Clinton, or Clinton Stronger Together; Trump or Trump Make America Great Again) is cool, but tying the candidate to their party ("Democrats for Clinton" or "Republicans for Trump") is bad.  If my understanding of the above is incorrect, please do let me know. Also, that guidance could do well some editing for clarity and plain English. (Plus a period or two, and even bullets.) 			""DoubleClick is Google's display advertising business. DoubleClick tracks users across websites using "cookies" to collect "demographic information" about users. DoubleClick uses this information to improve its ad targeting. So for example, if a user's web browsing behavior suggests an interest in rare types of cancer, DoubleClick might show the user an ad about mesothelioma. All of this activity is fully disclosed in the DoubleClick Privacy Policy, which approximately 0% of PubMed's Users have actually read. Despite what the NLM Privacy Policy says, you can't opt-out of receiving DoubleClick Advertising, you can only opt out of DoubleClick Ad Targeting. It's interesting to note that before February 21 of this year, there was no mention of DoubleClick in (see the previous policy &lt;https://web.archive.org/web/20170215013839/https://www.nlm.nih.gov/privacy.html&gt;). Despite the date, there's no reason to think that the new Privacy Policy is related to the change in administrations, as NIH Director Francis Collins was retained in his position by President Trump. More likely it's related to new leadership at NLM. In August 2016, Dr. Patricia Flatley Brennan became NLM director. Dr. Brennan, a registered nurse and an engineer has emphasized the role of data to the Library's mission. The "demographic and interest data" used by NLM is based on individual click data collected by Google Analytics. As I've previously written, Google analytics only tracks users across websites if the per-site tracker ids can be connected to a global tracker id like the ones used by DoubleClick. What NLM is allowing Google to do is connect the Google Analytics user data to the DoubleClick user data. So Google's advertising business gets to use all the Google Analytics data and the Analytics data provided to NLM can include all the DoubleClick "demographic and interest" data. What information does Google receive when you do a search on Pubmed? For every click or search, Google's servers receive - your search term and result page URL - your doubleclick user tracking ID - your referring page URL - your IP address - your browser software and operating system While "only NLM staff conducts analyses on the aggregated data from DoubleClick", the DoubleClick tracking platform analyzes the unaggregated data from PubMed. And while it's true that "the demographic and interest data" of Pubmed visitors cannot be used to identify them as individuals, the data collected by the Google trackers can trivially be used to identify as individuals any PubMed users with Google accounts. Last year, Google changed its privacy policy to allow it to associate users' personal information with activity on sites like Pubmed. ...

D28M1MCCB	2017-06-20	Victor Udoewa DCA	I am doing well. Thanks. I hope you are well as well. Is your group now just you and Dan? Or is Josh over it. I get confused.	2017-06-20 10:33:11	FALSE
D28M1MCCB	2017-06-20	Victor Udoewa DCA (he/him)	So yes, in short international development has no one person over it. There is no secretary or cabinet-level person hat meets with he president daily (or at least used to, since Trump does things differently or maybe it's because he was waiting for a certain number of confirmations before starting the daily cabinet meetings) representing all of USG ID (intl dev).	2017-06-20 10:34:31	FALSE
D28M1MCCB	2017-06-20	Victor Udoewa DCA	Instead we have various groups doing it	2017-06-20 10:34:40	FALSE

D28M1MCCB	2017-06-20	Victor Udoewa DCA (he/him)	1) State 2) USAID 3) NIH (has a foreign office) 4) EPA (has an international office) 5) USDA (Has a foreign agricultural service) 6) USTR (trade representative) 7) Commerce (has a foreign office and a foreign service like State and AID) 8) Treasury (has a foreign office) 9) MCC (public company like 18F that does loans based on governance) 9) etc.  Everyone does their own thing (except USAID whose administrator is required to report to the Sec of State with only a dotted line to the president). And this has caused problems with countries receiving foreign assistance because if you are a low-to-middle-income country getting assistance from multiple parts of the USG, each part has its own process, paperwork, monitoring and evaluation, and guidelines which drives countries batty. An example is a particular East African country who called a moratorium on all US foreign assistance due to the nightmarish overhead of dealing with multiple parts of the USG.	2017-06-20 10:49:42	FALSE
D28M1MCCB	2017-06-20	Victor Udoewa DCA	So there are opportunities to streamline processes in general.	2017-06-20 10:49:57	FALSE
D28M1MCCB	2017-06-20	Victor Udoewa DCA (he/him)	But it also just means we have an opportunity not just to do  1) Internal IT work for Agencies 2) External Digital service works for Agencies focused on domestic issues 3) International external digital service work for Agencies focused on foreign issues as well	2017-06-20 10:50:55	FALSE
D28M1MCCB	2017-06-20	Victor Udoewa DCA (he/him)	A good example is the talks I had with USAID who was interested in hiring 18F to help them design and establish digital service centers in West Africa to help respond to and address health situations in the wake of the Ebola crisis.	2017-06-20 10:51:39	FALSE
D28M1MCCB	2017-06-20	Victor Udoewa DCA	If we were more proactive I think we could have gotten it. They went with USDS instead of us.	2017-06-20 10:52:02	FALSE

			Good use of "galvanize" in this article &gt; The White House's National Economic Council has changed the Trump administra ion's approach to steel in the past week, people familiar with the strategy said. They are hoping to galvanize other countries at the G-20 to work together to confront China over its government support for its steel industry, with the idea that joint pressure could be more effective and remove the possibility that the United States has to move alone.

news	2017-06-07	Dave Zvenyach (Alumni / MSN / He / Him)	<Ichannel> :mega: TTS from <@U2WGLQLKT>: ... Dear TTS,  By now, you should have seen the email from the Acting Administrator announcing a GSA reorganization which moves TTS into FAS. Attached to this email is the proposed GSA Order implementing the change.  I appreciate that this change is unexpected and significant and will raise questions and concerns. That's a reflection of how much we all care about our group and our mission. But I can assure you that the intention behind this is to help us thrive, and I believe it will prove to be a very positive change. We will continue to have our own culture and identity, and we we will continue to work as we always have in an agile, user-centered way. And the move comes with many important practical benefits such as authorities and funding.  The GSA leadership team has expressed its strong support for our mission and will be participating in our town hall later today to share those sentiments directly with you. We will also be meeting in smaller groups to discuss questions and concerns.  The work you do has gained respect and won strong support throughout the government. I continue to be blown away by your energy and dedication in making a difference. You are an inspiration to work with, and I look forward to this next phase of our time together. Thank you.  Rob   ----- Forwarded message ----- From: GSA Acting Administrator &lt;ActingAdministrator@notify.gsa.gov>; Subject: Changes in FAS and TTS  Acting Administrator  GSA has always been at the center of the effort to make the federal government more effective and efficient. From the core of our culture, we are a leading force in the campaign to modernize the federal government. As we help other federal agencies address their complicated business challenges, we must also be prepared to transform how we work to be more agile and cost effective, and to provide better service for our agency partners and the American people.  Many parts of GSA have been and will continue to be crucial to this transformation. In the area of technology, the Federal Acquisition Service and the Technology Transformation Service have been key to this effort. To date, both FAS and TTS have produced laudable results, and the Trump administration is seeking even greater success requiring the efforts of a larger and diversified organization.  Consistent with this vision, today I notified Congress of my intent to reorganize GSA by moving TTS organizationally into FAS. The move will allow GSA to continue to support the missions of both organizations while achieving significantly greater impact and results.  In addition, the Administration has decided to fill the FAS Commissioner position with a non-career appointee. Alan Thomas has been selected to serve as the new Commissioner of FAS; we will announce his start date soon. Rob Cook will serve as Deputy Commissioner and Director of Technology Transformation Services. Kevin Youel Page will continue to serve as a Deputy Commissioner overseeing the current FAS organizations.  By placing all of the offices focused on government modernization into the same organization, GSA will be better able to leverage its expertise and assets in support of the White House and its Office of American Innovation.  Alan brings to GSA broad experience with both technology and business management. He is familiar with GSA and FAS, and has knowledge and experiences with the latest private sector business practices.  Thank you for your continued support of GSA and of our work to modernize the federal government.	2017-06-07 13:30:45	FALSE

			GSA has always been at he center of the effort to make the federal government more effective and efficient. From he core of our culture, we are a leading force in the campaign to modernize the federal government. As we help other federal agencies address their complicated business challenges, we must also be prepared to transform how we work to be more agile and cost effec ive, and to provide better service for our agency partners and the American people. Many parts of GSA have been and will continue to be crucial to this transforma ion. In the area of technology, the Federal Acquisition Service and the Technology Transforma ion Service have been key to this effort. To date, both FAS and TTS have produced laudable results, and the Trump administration is seeking even greater success requiring the efforts of a larger and diversified organiza ion. Consistent with his vision, today I notified Congress of my intent to reorganize GSA by moving TTS organiza ionally into FAS. The move will allow GSA to continue to support he missions of both organizations while achieving significantly greater impact and results. In addition, the Administration has decided to fill the FAS Commissioner posi ion with a non-career appointee. Alan Thomas has been selected to serve as the new Commissioner of FAS; we will announce his start date soon. Rob Cook will serve as Deputy Commissioner and Director of Technology Transformation Services. Kevin Youel Page will con inue to serve as a Deputy Commissioner overseeing the current FAS organizations. By placing all of the offices focused on government modernization into the same organization, GSA will be better able to leverage its expertise and assets in support of he White House and its Office of American Innovation. Alan brings to GSA broad experience with both technology and business management. He is familiar wi h GSA and FAS, and has knowledge and experiences with the latest private sector business prac ices. Thank you for your continued support of GSA and of our work to modernize the federal government.

			Dear TTS, By now, you should have seen the email from the Acting Administrator announcing a GSA reorganization which moves TTS into FAS. Attached to this email is the proposed GSA Order implementing the change. I appreciate that this change is unexpected and significant and will raise questions and concerns. That's a reflection of how much we all care about our group and our mission. But I can assure you that the intention behind this is to help us thrive, and I believe it will prove to be a very positive change. We will continue to have our own culture and identity, and we will continue to work as we always have in an agile, user-centered way. And the move comes with many important practical benefits such as authorities and funding. The GSA leadership team has expressed its strong support for our mission and will be participating in our town hall later today to share those sentiments directly with you. We will also be meeting in smaller groups to discuss questions and concerns. The work you do has gained respect and won strong support throughout the government. I continue to be blown away by your energy and dedication in making a difference. You are an inspiration to work with, and I look forward to this next phase of our time together. Thank you.

mpdm-willsullivan--i	2019-05-28	Will Sullivan (18F DC He)	Project History: The CFPB released its initial version of eRegulations in 2013, several staff members from CFPB came to 18F. CFPB still maintains and supports their instance of eRegs, although active development hasn't happened too much recently. With the new CFPB -&gt; 18F team members, 18F began reusing the open source code and selling client work around eRegs as a platform for hosting digital regulations. The first paying client was ATF in 2015, and offered it as a consulting/development engagement. ATF's instance is still live today, they use < http //Cloud.gov  Cloud.gov> to host it, but haven't hired us to do development work in more than a year and a half, largely due to budget constraints. They would like to add features in the future. The Federal Election Commission, while working with 18F on a multi-year engagement, integrated eRegs into their website offering for their regulation, and they still maintain it with their own development team. In July 2016, 18F expanded the platform with Notice and Comment features using GSA "Great Pitch" (what 10x was called before it was 10x), and partnered with the EPA on a live proposal they were offering for public comment (no money exchanged hands with the EPA). The pilot was generally considered a success and future development would be necessary to make this a full blown system to be able to take on some of the major public comment challenges like the FTC's Net Neutrality proposal, but that was the end goal to be able to support such a thing. 18F worked with OMB to modify the eRegs framework/concept and take the same approach to digitizing, tracking changes, adding features and functionality on Policy documents and their proposals, creating the OMB Policy Library. The work was part of the Office of American Innovation portfolio in the newly elected Trump Administration and funded for more than a year, but as we exhausted our funds for the first year, budget cuts eliminated renewal funds, the key executive OMB sponsor was promoted and moved to a different position (and soon after left the organization), and the project was shelved when funds ran out and the team was reassigned (many of whom have left 18F or termed out; Tadhg and Will are the last of the core eRegs team).	2019-05-28 13:37:35	FALSE
